

Sample 2

140 Blog Posts about Seduction and Sex

Sexual Attraction Doesn't Get enough Respect

Sexual attraction (or the feeling of arousal) doesn't get enough respect.

It's seen as a silly feeling we have when we want to have sex. And it's not as important as love, which is a feeling we glorify more than any other feeling.

But the fact is that love is a direct result of sexual attraction. Your wife won't love you if she doesn't feel sexual attraction towards you.

When we claim that we 'fall out of love', it's really 'falling out of arousal'. But we won't admit that to ourselves. It's too crude. (And cruel.)

Your wife might claim that she just fell out of love. But in reality, she stopped being sexually attracted to you. And as a result, her brain chemistry changed. Her "love hormones" (including oxytocin) declined, and she stopped loving you.

If we continue to see sexual attraction, or arousal, as a silly feeling mostly belonging to teenagers, we'll be fooling ourselves.

Sexual attraction is the main feeling that keeps couples together. If your wife stops caring about her looks, and you stop being calm-assertive, then the feeling of love will decline.

Not because 'love' is an unexplainable and "holy" feeling. But because 'love' is the direct result of 'sexual attraction'.

-Tom

End of sample 2